COUNCIL BLUFFS.

Saturday Morning, Jan. 13.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
By Carrier, 30 cents per week.
By Mail, $10.00 per year.
Office: No. 7 Pearl Street, Near Broadway.

That Council Bluffs has had a year of great prosperity, and great advancement is evident from the showings of facts and figures already given in THE BEE. It remains with its citizens and business men whether this growth shall continue, or whether there shall come stagnation and decline. This city has almost unparalleled railway facilities. It has many marked advantages for manufacturing enterprises and wholesale establishments. It remains simply for Council Bluffs to use its facilities and improve its opportunities.

This city is in condition to reach out much further into the surrounding country for business than it has yet done and to draw trade here from a much larger territory than is yet covered.

In this gathering in the business which ought to be tributary to Council Bluffs, all must concede that THE BEE is an invaluable help, of which every business man should avail himself. Besides its large local circulation it finds its way into almost every nook and corner of a large field, east, west, north and south, where its competitors are almost unheard of.

The wide awake and enterprising business men and manufacturers of Council Bluffs need but little more than a reminder of THE BEE's extensive circulation to cause them to realize that by no other advertising medium can they so readily reach the trade which they are seeking.

When you feel out of sorts, have the blues, melancholy, etc., it must be indigestion that ails you. Brown's Iron Bitters cures it.

PERSONAL.

Wm. Holt, of Des Moines, was in the city yesterday.

Mrs. Jerry Myers has returned from her eastern trip.

Lu B. Calk, of Clarinda, who is so well known by his humorous and pathetic sketches, was a welcome caller at THE BEE office yesterday.

C. R. Warren, representing a New York electric light company, is in the city trying to arrange with the local company organized here for lighting this city by electricity.

Major J. H. Marshall, who has been the Northwestern agent at Des Moines, has been called to take the position of general agent here made vacant by the promotion of J. T. Clark. Major Marshall was formerly connected with the K. C. here, and has scores of warm friends who will gladly welcome him back to Council Bluffs.

Alderman F. C. Newell, the general agent here for the McCormick harvester company, is about to remove from the city, he having been offered a more responsible and lucrative position with the Walter A. Wood company, with headquarters at Fargo. Mr. Newell has been connected with the McCormick company for twelve years past, having spent two years in Europe, two in Australia and New Zealand, and during the past six years has been located here. He has proved himself a valuable man, not only to the company but also to this city as a citizen and an official, and it will be with regret that he is allowed to depart. The position which he is now to occupy is that of manager of the Wood company's house at Fargo, with control of a territory embracing Minnesota, Dakota, and the British possessions. He intends to leave for Fargo in about a week, but his family will remain here until spring, and he will probably make several trips back to Council Bluffs in the meantime.

Harkness, Orcutt & Co. have still a few fine silk dolmans. Call and see them.

Containing all the essentials of a true tonic, and sure to give satisfaction, is Brown's Iron Bitters.

BORN TO DIE.

The Frozen Body of an Infant Found in an Incompleted Building on Broadway.

A Horrible Showing of the Cruelty of Some Unknown Mother.

Yesterday morning, little Jo., a six year old son of W. W. Gilmore, while playing about near his home on Broadway, peered into the basement of the unfinished brick block at the corner of Union avenue and Broadway, and seeing some rags in a little heap at the bottom crawled in to pick them up. On lifting one, the little fellow was horrified at finding the body of a babe. He hurried home with the strange story, and his parents hastening to the place found it was only too true. Coroner Paul was at once notified, and with Constable Fox and a jury visited the place, and taking the little body in charge had it removed to Mr. Morgan's undertaking establishment where an inquest was held. Dr. W. G. Edmonds, who was called in to examine the body, testified, "After an examination of the dead infant, I find it is a matured boy with placental attachment, of white parents, born in the past forty-eight hours and from to death sometime after delivery." Mr. Caruthers, one of the men at work on the building, testified that he noticed the clothes there Thursday forenoon, but made no examination and mistrusted nobody. The clothes found wrapped about the child, consisted of a piece of an old comfortable, and well worn sack, belonging to some woman evidently. The child was apparently placed there soon after it was born, and left there to freeze to death, there being discovered no marks of violence, and the babe being so well developed as to indicate that under any ordinary circumstances it would have had long life and strong physique. From such circumstantial evidence as could be secured, it was evident that the child was born some time Wednesday night and almost immediately after birth was taken to the building and there left to die by cold and exposure.

The jury, consisting of H. W. Tilton, G. H. Jones and E. Rosencrans, returned a finding—"That the deceased, an unknown male child, came to his death by freezing, having been willfully exposed soon after birth, on or about the 10th of January, 1883, by some person or persons unknown to the jury."

It is to be hoped that the one guilty of so unnatural and ghastly a crime may be brought to justice, but there seems little or no clue yet leading up to a suspicion, much less a conviction. This is the second case of the kind discovered here within a short time, the other being a babe found in a vault on Pierce street.

Holiday goods at Harkness, Orcutt & Co.'s.

Grandy & Co. always have kept a popular store, and now that they have got into the very center of business, they will no doubt largely centralize the retail drug trade, and "so mote it be."

The old stand of the Citizens' bank is now occupied by Grandy & Co.

The new fixtures, freshly garnished walls, and the elegant trimmings of a first-class drug store have completely metamorphosed the old cent per cent quarters.

A good medicinal tonic, with real merit, is Brown's Iron Bitters, so all druggists say.

Fidelity Council No. 156 R. A. will entertain Pioneer Council No. 118 of Omaha at their council, Friday evening, Jan. 19th. All members wishing to participate are requested to notify the committee on reception on or before Jan. 17th inst.

A COUNCIL BLUFFS CROOK.

George Monroe Arrested For Burglary at a Des Moines Jewelry Store.

Many here still remember a young man giving his name as George Monroe, who gained some notoriety in police circles here as being a sneak-thief, and who was caught on one charge, that of stealing an overcoat, and sentenced to jail for thirty days. Officer Edgar, who has a keen scent, has been working on the fellow for some time, and had got another man, who who seemed to be a pal of Monroe's to worm out of him what he could. Monroe told his seeming pal that he had a "plant," and as the pal claimed to have one too, they agreed to raise Monroe's and replant it with the other. Monroe on being released from jail here started to Atlantic, and it was expected that he would return here to meet his friend, and thus come under the shadow of the officer until they could get him "dead to rights." It seems however that he has in the meantime got into a burglary scrape at Des Moines, and been arrested at Knoxville. The following particulars of Monroe's arrest are given by THE KNOXVILLE EXPRESS:

Last night about 7:30 p. m. in City Marshal Boydston received a telegram from Adam Hafner, chief of police in Des Moines, to arrest a man and woman who were here selling jewelry and to hold them till he arrived on the train which gets to Knoxville at 10:50. Marshal Boydston at once hunted up Sheriff Swift and informed him of the receipt of the telegram, and together they proceeded to arrest the parties.

It will be proper to say here that the parties referred to came to our city last Tuesday night on the night train from Des Moines, put up at the Amos house, and registered as man and wife, and the man gave his name as Borch, from Omaha, Neb. They were shown to their room, Landford Ruffner suspecting nothing wrong.

The next morning Borch informed Mr. Ruffner that he was a traveling man for a large jewelry house in St. Louis, and that he had made a large amount of goods on hand that were slightly damaged, as he had been unfortunate enough to be in a railroad wreck with his stock, and through the accident was obliged to sell it for what he could get. He made arrangements to stay at the Amos for a day or two. He also rented a sample room, took out city license, opened up and displayed his ware and offered it for sale. He advertised on a small scale around town that he was selling jewelry at greatly reduced prices for the Christmas holidays, a great many of our citizens dropped in to see his stock and some purchased trinkets of various kinds at what they considered fair prices. He did business Wednesday and Thursday, and on Thursday evening he told Mr. Ruffner that he believed he would stay longer as he was doing a good business. Said he had sent a couple of packages of goods to Albia, which he desired to attend to, as he thought he could dispose of all he had if he had them here. Believed he would send for them. He continued all day yesterday to get rid of his "slightly damaged" in a railroad accident jewelry," and when evening came he informed the courteous proprietor of the Amos that he would not go up to the theatre, and requested Mr. R. to let his wife accompany him, as he desired to attend to the hotel man promptly complied with his request, and took her to the theatre, while her attentive to business and energetic "husband" remained in the sample room to ply his traffic and tricks.

At about 10:30 Boydston and Sniff had got their heads together and formed a plan for the capture of the (to the police) two precious birds. After putting a guard at the hall to watch the movements of the woman, the two officers proceeded to the sample room adjoining the hotel, entered, walked up to the gentleman who fat doubt thought he was getting some fat customers. After our efficient sheriff's embarrassment had worn off a little, he informed the gold and silver knight that he was his prisoner. He was greatly astonished and at first tried to impress the mind of his visitors that he considered it a joke. But when he found that they were in earnest, the true elements of the desperate man began to develop themselves. He at once attempted to draw from his pocket a large revolver. The officers, discerning his motive caught him and told him to quietly surrender himself and there would be no trouble.

When he found that resistance was useless he sat down on a box the picture of a hellish rage and abuse. By this time the young woman had turned from the theatre, and upon her entrance the officer's claimed her as their prisoner, and quite a scene followed. The woman made a desperate attempt to escape. But the officers detained her, not, however, without quite a struggle.

Now for the cause of all this excitement and the sequel to the above. By this time the night train had arrived, bringing Policeman Hafner of Des Moines, who repaired to the hotel and at once proceeded to adorn the gay Lothario with jewelry of a more weighty character and less intrinsic value than that he had been supplying our citizens with. His real name is George Monroe, and he is a resident of West Des Moines. The woman who was with him is not his wife, but May Lawrence, of Belle Plaine. Says the man is a hard character, well known to the police all over the country. The same man was here three years ago in the role of a detective and had a woman with him then. When the iron was put on he said he had "worn them often before."

THE TALE OF A TRAMP.

He Tells Strange Things About His Three Visits to Council Bluffs.

He Makes a Raise and Strikes Out for the West.

Yesterday a tramp-like looking fellow, who gave his name as Henry Y. Johnson, succeeded in making a raise of $30, and proceeded to skip for the west in high glee and with sanguine hopes of again finding a fortune to take the place of the one he had lost. He made the raise legitimately by one of those streaks of good luck which occasionally lighten up a man's pathway. He has been here for about ten days, lounging about, trying to get some means by which to push westward, and has been so reduced in purse that he has been compelled to seek free lodgings at the calaboose for a night or two. Yesterday he met here a man from Chicago, whom he had known in years of more prosperity, and from whom some months ago, when getting to the bottom again, he had borrowed $20, putting up a good gold watch as security. On meeting this man, who is now traveling for a wholesale house, he so moved upon his sympathy as to induce him to change the loan into a purchase, and to pay him $30 more and buy the watch outright. Thus, again in the possession of a few dollars, he saw his way clear to go west, into the mining country, and see if he cannot retrieve his lost fortunes.

The man Johnson tells quite a romantic history of his life and especially of the three times he had been in Council Bluffs. The first time was about eight years ago. He had been living in Terre Haute, Ind., but having some difficulty with his wife, they separated and he struck for the west, intending to begin a new life, and he hoped a more prosperous one, though he had already accumulated something for the rainy days. He passed through this city then on his way to Leadville.

Four years later he passed through Council Bluffs again, bound eastward. He was then better fixed than when he struck for the west. He had accumulated a nice little sum, and was of course, correspondingly happy. At the transfer here a most romantic incident occurred. To his utter astonishment he there met his wife, from whom he separated four years ago, and who had secured a divorce from him on the grounds of desertion. She was accompanied by her little girl, who had grown to be quite a little miss, over eight years of age. The recognition of husband and wife was mutual, but neither spoke, until the little girl cried out "why that's papa," and ran towards him. The man and woman then fell into a conversation, and memories of earlier years crowding upon them, they came to a reconciliation, and an agreement to resume their relations, so rudely broken.

The woman, it appears was on her way to Denver to there meet and live with her brother, who had urged her to share his home there. The meeting of her former husband caused her to change her mind, and she concluded to go eastward with him. After telegraphing her brother she turned back with her husband and child, and on reaching Chicago they were again married.

After that they made their home in Kansas, until the wife died two years ago. He went to Chicago soon after, and there speedily lost in speculations what worldly wealth he had accumulated. He went rapidly from worse to worse until he got so reduced as to place him almost on the pauper list. One after another of his personal effects went, among them his gold watch, on which he borrowed $20 of one who had known him a better time of day. The cash went with the rest, and he has since been going down, down, until he struggled westward as a sort of tramp, reaching this city for the third time in a more miserable condition than ever before. The raise which he made here came as a happy help, and he made arrangements for his departure with a glad heart. He says he is going to brace up and get down to business in the mines again, and swears that when he reaches Council Bluffs for the fourth time it will be as a gentleman, possessed of at least enough money to pay his hotel bills and expenses.

"Durability is better than show." Durability of health is worth more than the wealth of a Vanderbilt. Kidney-Wort is man's co-laborer in maintaining health. With healthy liver, bowels and kidneys, men and women will always be in good health. If the bowels are torpid, it piles torment, if the back is full of pain, get a package of Kidney-Wort and be cured without more suffering.

Suit has been begun in the district court of Dubuque county against Holscher Bros. of Dyersville for $15,000 damages by Mrs. Holscher, wife of the man who died from excessive drinking of whisky on a wager in Holscher Bros' saloon. The defendants are reputed to be wealthy.
